THE ONE-PERSON AGENCY STACK

The tools that run my insurance agency while I'm on the phone.

How I automated VS Health Benefits and kept it growing, without a marketing team.

TOOL 01

Claude

My builder and strategist

Built 260+ website pages

Guides for truckers, owner-operators, small businesses and Spanish speakers.

Built my admin and client portals

Plus the back-end connections that tie the site to my CRM.

Runs my SEO fixes

Merged 11 duplicate pages and fixed 156 internal links in one pass.

How I use it: I describe what I need. Claude builds it. I test it.

TOOL 02

GoHighLevel

My CRM and follow-up engine

New member onboarding

Welcome email right away, a text 5 minutes later, a portal tour the next day.

Referral updates

A thank-you, a text at every stage, and a congrats when the policy closes.

Follow-up that stops on reply

Old leads get a 30-day email sequence that ends the moment they answer.

Support tickets

Every request gets a ticket number and an instant confirmation email.

TOOL 03

AI voice + chat agents

My front desk that never sleeps

A voice agent answers every call

It asks: member or shopping for coverage? Then it looks up members or qualifies new callers.

Hands off to me when it matters

If it can't find someone, it transfers the call straight to my line.

Chat on every page

Answers questions and books calls right onto my calendar.

Why: the #1 complaint about insurance is "I can never reach anyone."

TOOL 04

Vercel + GitHub

My website and back end

Free tools people actually use

ACA subsidy calculator, COBRA vs. Marketplace, ICHRA vs. group health.

Forms that never lose a lead

Phone number first, so even a half-finished quote is someone I can call.

Every change saved and live in minutes

GitHub keeps the history. Vercel puts it online.

74 clicks from Google came from the subsidy calculator alone.

TOOL 05

Google's free tools

Search Console + Analytics · my scoreboard

What people search, and where I rank

Search Console showed me the real questions, like "when is open enrollment 2027?"

Every action tracked

Phone clicks, chat opens, quote starts and finished leads, on every page.

Where every lead came from

Google, a referral, or a specific page, saved on the lead for 90 days.

Lesson: put dates, prices and next steps right in the page title.

TOOL 06

My custom admin portal

Mission control · built with Claude, runs on Firebase

Pipeline and business-leads boards

Every lead from GoHighLevel shows up here automatically.

Callback alarms

A pop-up tells me the minute it's time to call someone back.

Daily sales sequences

My day, hour by hour: dial blocks, follow-ups and wrap-up.

The goal: open one screen each morning and know exactly who to call.

TOOL 07

VS Connect + RingCentral

Where the selling happens

One click and I'm calling

Click Call on any lead and the number goes straight to my dialer.

Switch dialers in one tap

VS Connect or RingCentral, picked right from the top of my portal.

No copy, no paste, no typos

More dials every hour, with less busywork.

The point: automation handles the busywork so I can spend my time talking to people.

WHAT I LEARNED

4 lessons from building this.

01 One CRM. Everything flows into it.

I cut three separate tools down to one. Nothing falls through the cracks now.

02 Better answers beat more content.

Merging duplicate pages made the pages I kept rank higher.

03 Automate the follow-up, not the relationship.

The texts and emails are automatic. The conversations are still me.

04 Build one small piece at a time.

Describe it, build it, test it, then move on to the next piece.

STILL GROWING

I'm not done. Here's what's next.

By Nov 1 — Page 1 on Google for our 2027 Open Enrollment guide

Next — My first hire: an executive assistant

2027 — More leads from what I own, fewer I have to buy

Follow along as I build it.

Which tool would you add to your business first? Tell me in the comments.
